Choosing an Exotic Pet

Have you ever thought about owning a really unusual pet? Some people love having an exotic pet to show off to their friends, while others think owning an exotic pet makes them special. An exotic pet might be an iguana, a giraffe, a cockatiel, a snake, a kangaroo, a bear, or even a chimpanzee! There are many unique pets to consider.

When you become a pet parent, you must consider how to care for your exotic pet. What do they eat? What do they need to be comfortable in your home? Are they dangerous? Will you need to protect your family or friends? You also have to think about how much it costs to keep an exotic pet.

Research an exotic pet, then develop an argument and write a multi-paragraph essay either persuading your parents to allow you to purchase an exotic pet, or convincing them it is not a good idea. Be sure to include facts and details from your research to support your argument and counterarguments.

Once me and my friend were at school and we had to stay late while everyone left to go home. We were there for a long time, and we had no clue why. The principle said that my parents got home late. But it was dark outside so we had to walk home in the dark. So we left the school and started walking. We ran into this old mansion. Windows were shattered the paint was peeling and rats were everywhere. There is only one thing we have to do.

We walked inside and we heard weird noises but it looked like no one was home. We just ignored the noises by thinking it was just our imagination. We probably should have payed more attention to those noises. The noises got louder and we got frantically terrified! The only thing we have to protect ourselves is our book bags. What do you have in your book bag she said. I have a plastic butter knife I guess. She stared at me in confusion. I said what do you have? She said pepper spray. I was impressed.

Next we heard some weird, creepy voice from the corner but we didn't see him. That voice said, "come here I have something for you." So we ran and hid in the basement. We heard banging on the basement door and there that voice was again. It said, LET ME INNNN He was about to break down the door, but then I said, don't you have your pepper spray to my friend. She said oh yes I forgot I had that. Then he broke down the door and she went up to him before he even got a chance to do anything and she sprayed him in the eyes, his eyes were burning and we were very happy and we ran! We sat on the porch outside. Then we randomly got very hungry. I gapped loudly and she said WHAT WHATS WRONG? I said I knew my butter knife would come in handy, she said what do you mean? Then I pulled out my toast that I forgot to eat from breakfast and I got my butter knife and spread the butter and we split the toast. We were about to leave but then I remembered that I left my phone inside.

So I said stay here! She relaxed. I said fine you can come with me as long as you have your pepper spray! She said she had it. But she had a plan. She left it outside on purpose! So we went in looking for my phone. There was a monster right in front of us! We turned around and tried to run but there was another one behind us! He found the pepper spray and said looking for that? She whispered in my ear and said take dead. I said why? Just do it she said, so we both fell on the floor.

The monsters stood at each other and dropped the pepper spray and walked away. Then she got up and got the spray and ran to the monsters to spray them and I got my butter knife that still had butter on it and we put it on their arms and apparently they were allergic to butter and their arms were swelling up and we ran out the house and finally got home. Our parents were like what took you all so long to get home? We looked at each other and said its a long story.
